WHAT DO SELF-ORGANIZATIONS THINK ABOUT SOCIAL WORK?

In our series of events, we invite to a dialogue between self-organizations and affected persons' initiatives and practitioners/students of social work. The positions and demands of the self-organizations are to be given space in the series of events.

INTERNATIONAL WOMEN SPACE

"International Women Space (IWS) is a feminist, anti-racist political group in Berlin with migrant and refugee women and non-migrant women as members. We fight patriarchy and document everyday violence, racism, sexism and all kinds of discrimination." (homepage IWS)

CRITICAL SOCIAL WORK IN THE MIGRATION SOCIETY

- What do self-organized groups expect from social work?
- What do self-organized groups criticize about "conventional" social work?
- What do social workers expect from self-organized groups?
- Where is their work critical from a social work perspective?
- How and where is it possible to detach social work from its bureaucratic contexts?
- We are looking forward to impulses for a practice and a discourse of critical social work and a lively exchange!

We will discuss these and other questions, as well as social work in the migration society on 22.02.

Be there!
